JUST AS EASY TO PITCH IN MAJORS

New York Johnny Allen, tall Carolina boy with a steel arm, was musing on a trunk just outside the Yankees' dressing room, when someone loudly up the question, whether it's harder to pitch in the minor or major leagues.

Johnny considers himself a right smart authority on this subject because he's flinging his first season of big time baseball, and incidentally making a fine job of it having registered 14 wins for the Yanks against only two defeats.

It's just as easy to pitch good ball with a major outfit as with a minor club," he declared, nodding his curly black head emphatically. You see, when a fellow starts showing on across for a club like the Yanks, he's up against better hitters. He's got to be more careful.

But don't forget that the pitcher's got a lot better support behind him than he had in the minors. When a batter connects with the ball in a minor league that it'll be a bit more than a similar drive in the majors. So I figure it's about a 50-50 proposition."

Allen shirked 134 pounds of rambunctious beef about on the trunk, and declared that the rookie pitcher is often handicapped during his first year in the majors because of the feeling that he's doing important work.

He explained that the rookie had to fight against nervousness, particularly if he's a fast ball pitcher with whom control means everything.

I had trouble when I first started this season, he continued. It took a lot of practice to get used to that funny sort of a thrill that tickles you inside somewhere. But I finally got the old control back and started beating right down on the hitters. It doesn't matter how long you've been in professional baseball, you get the biggest thrill of your life when you break into the big time.

Johnny played pro baseball four years before his success with the New York club. He was with Toronto last year, Jersey City in 1929, Asheville, N.C. in 1929, and Greenville, N.C. in '28. He is 26, married and just reaching his prime. He concluded, I expect to be a lot better next year.

NO FARMER BUYING POWER
TILL INDEBTEDNESS PAID

Regina.—The Saskatchewan Government announced a short time ago that farmers might pay their indebtedness to the Saskatchewan Relief Commission in wheat, on which they would be given credit at a price based on 20 cents a bushel at Fort William for No. 1 Northern, which at the time represented a bonus of approximately 14 cents a bushel, or a six cent count on indebtedness of approximately 20 per cent.

It now develops that there is more than a concession to farmers involved in this plan, and that not only may farmers repay their indebtedness in this way, but they must do so.

The government has developed an elaborate plan for collection, notifying agents at elevator points in the province of the amounts due from various farmers, and entering a claim to the first grain delivered by each farmer until the amount of the debt is satisfied. No other claim, it is stated, will come ahead of that of the Relief Commission, with the exception of taxes or a thresher's lien when actual seizure has been made.

The instructions given to elevator agents are that the tickets, or receipts for grain, not delivered are to be made out in the name of the Saskatchewan Relief Commission, and forwarded direct to that body while the farmer gets an acknowledgment that the documents in question have been issued.

This procedure, it is evident, will leave the Relief Commission with a very large quantity of grain owned by it in elevators over the greater part of Saskatchewan. What procedure the commission will then follow has not been made clear, but the simple plan will be to sell the grain once to the various grain companies at the current prices. The commission, of course, could allow the grain to be forwarded to terminal elevators, and await what it might consider a favorable time for selling, but it would be taking the risk of price fluctuations, and

HEARD ON THE STREET

A naval surgeon was aroused from his bed in the early hours of the morning by the phone left. Hello, he said sleepily, picking up the receiver. What is it?

"Oh doctor, we've been having a party," said a rather agitated house voice over the wire, and rather worried about my job, A. Stocks."

"But why bother me?" snapped back the surgeon. "Is he seeing of anyone or something?"

"That's the trouble doctor," replied the voice. "The room is full of them, and he can't see any."

The one thing that hurts more than having to pay income tax is not having to pay income tax.

after the first fifteen days of free storage, charges would begin to pile up against the grain.

Corresponding arrangements apply in connection with oats, barley, rye and flax, the prices at which the commission will carry grain being proportionately higher than current market values. The intention is that a farmer's indebtedness for relief advances made during the past year shall be liquidated before he is able to sell grain for himself. Then out of the proceeds of the first grain he sells, in case he obtained binder time on credit from the commission, settlement has to be made for the cost of the wine, on orders previously signed, but on these accounts only current market prices will apply.

In business circles there is some disposition to criticize these arrangements, since it is evident that the proceeds of some millions of bushels of the first grain marketed in the province will not provide any spending power for the farmer, or get into circulation, except in so far as they reduce the indebtedness of the province to the banks from which money was obtained to finance relief expenditures. The theory is expressed that the government should rather have been willing to collect the repayment grain at the end of the season instead of at the beginning.

Asked what he thought of the two conditions for the election, an enlightened voter replied:

"Well, when I look at them I can't think of only one of them that is elected."

A good Presbyterian farmer, not far from here, was milking his cow that had taxed his patience severely. The pal was about out of morning milk, when the cow kicked and overturned the pail. In righteous indignation the farmer snatched up a club to strike the animal when he remembered the precepts of his religion. Dropping the club and in a voice trembling with anger, said: "I may not beat you, neither may I kick you, but I will twist your damned tail." And he did.

Can you come around and have dinner with me on Monday?

No, I have an engagement Monday evening.

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER CROP PRICE GUARANTY

Take advantage of this offer . . . Get the new equipment you need to reduce your production costs

Many farmers who need new machines for the economical production of their crops have been reluctant to buy them because of uncertainty as to the prices they will receive later in the year for these farm products.

In order to meet this situation, the International Harvester Company of Canada, Ltd., offers to farmers purchasing machines after this date, a definite price guaranty on wheat based on 77 cents a bushel for No. 1 Northern at Winnipeg, applying to a liberal portion of the purchase price of the machine. If the market price for wheat does not reach the guaranteed price at the time payment becomes due on notes given and maturing this year, the purchaser of machines under the plan will receive a credit equal to the difference.

Any farmer in Canada, regardless of where he lives or what he raises, can purchase McCormick-Deering farm machines under the terms of this offer.

This is your chance to replace worn-out and obsolete equipment on a favorable price basis. Let us explain the details of this remarkable plan and tell you just how to take advantage of it in equipping your farm with the new cost-reducing machines you need at a real saving.

Political Chaos in British Columbia

Vancover, B.C.—Politically British Columbia seems to be in a somewhat hopeless mess. Nothing comparable to the B.C. situation exists in any other Canadian province.

Primarily the fault lies with the Tolmie Government, which has been in power for approximately four years. During the first half of this period the Government spent money like a drunken sailor, chiefly on an elaborate road programme, but in all directions money poured out of the provincial treasury in the firm belief that under the wise and beneficent rule of the Tolmie party the province would flourish like a green bay tree.

Then came depression, disillusionment and disappointment. Revenues commenced to shrink at an astonishing rate. Desperate efforts were made to economize, but efforts that were minimized by the fact that eighty-five per cent of the expenditures of the province are uncontrollable. Mr. Shelly, the Minister of Finance whose business experience was confined to the conducting of a successful bakery business and whose previous political experience was nil, dropped out of the ministry and was succeeded by Mr. J. W. Jones, who for years had been the Conservative financial critic in the Legislature. Undoubtedly Mr. Jones should have been named finance minister when the Tolmie Government was formed. He was debilitated for the Vancouver man and temporarily placated by being named Speaker of the Legislature. From that point of honor and vintage Mr. Jones was compelled to wade the province sink deeper and deeper into the financial mire under the financial management of an inexperienced manager, who could not resist the pressure of his colleagues for generous departmental expenditures.

When the situation promised to become desperate Mr. Shelly was relieved and Mr. Jones was called in. By the ruthless cutting down of departmental, educational, public works and road expenditures and all the other retrenchment devices practiced by other provinces Mr. Jones has striven to balance his budget. At the last session he produced a budget that balanced on paper although it was obvious to even a political novice that it was not likely to come within the limits of balancing. Neither new nor old taxes have been realizing the sums expected by the ministers. British Columbia by the time the funds have apparently gone on the water wagon and given up joy riding, for great is the shrinkage in the liquor revenue and the gasoline tax. A general one per cent tax on earnings, with no exemptions whatever, not even for the occasional earner, has been productive of disappointing results.

Realizing the seriousness of the situation, the Government agreed to a study being made of the provincial financial situation by a committee of business men headed by Mr. George Kidd, of the British Columbia Electric and Power interests. Shortly after Premier Tolmie hid himself away to Ottawa early June, there to remain until mid August, the Kidd report was handed to the Government and promptly put away in the safe of Hon. Mr. Pooley, Attorney General, but not before some copies had been made the substance of which got into the press.

It is understood that a part of the report made public weekly condemns public government as it has functioned in British Columbia in recent years and recommends the setting up of a coalition administration. Other features of the report are not so sweeping in character. So much so as a matter of fact that they border on the impractical. They include the abandonment of the Pacific Great Eastern railway on which the Governments of British Columbia have spent sixty millions, the reduction of the civil service by one-half, the practical elimination of the department of agriculture, and the reduction of the Legislature from 18 to 24 members. To the average voter these recommendations appear to be too drastic in character and this tendency of the report will probably weaken its general effect.

However that may be, there would seem to be no doubt that since the ministers became possessed of the Kidd report there has developed within the Tolmie Government a movement for a Coalition government on a fifty-fifty basis as between Liberals and Conservatives. It is proposed to call an Autumn session of the Legislature to put this plan into effect and to immediately hold a Provincial election to secure for the Coalition a strong mandate. Ministers within the cabinet seem to favor this plan in whole J. V. Jones, Minister of Finance; H. V. Bruhn, Minister of Public Works, a Norwegian by birth and reputedly the strong man of the cabinet; W. A. McKenzie, Minister of Mines, a plain letter to the Government in debate, and Joshua Hinchcliffe, Minister of Education, who has been primarily responsible for the heavy slashing of the appropriations for the University of British Columbia and educational votes in general.

Premier Tolmie, Attorney-General Pooley and other ministers are said to favor a cabinet reorganization rather than a Coalition. As matters stand, Mr. T. D. Pattullo, Liberal leader, is dead against Coalition. Mr. Pattullo has a fine distaste of the Tolmie Government and all its works, an opinion that is probably shared by a majority of the electorate. He is probably justified in holding back on the Coalition idea until he has definite assurance that the Coalition would not be anything more or less than a Conservative Government in disguise. As matters stand the general feeling is that the Coalition drift along on party lines and there is an election the province will turn to the Liberals in the hope that they will at least function better than the Tolmie Government. But should Premier Tolmie stand aside, or be possible, and a real Coalition be formed under some outside man not now in the Legislature, such a Government, it is thought, would get the overwhelming endorsement of the people.

It is inconceivable that the Tolmie Government will continue at present constituted as the feeling is overwhelming against it. Outside Victoria it has lost the newspaper support. The Vancouver Province unequivocally declares that the Tolmie Government as at present constituted must go and favors a strong Coalition ministry. The Liberal Sun is backing Mr. Pattullo for the first place in the political sun, but, like Mr. Pattullo, would probably modify its position if satisfied that any coalition proposal brought forward is the real thing and not a Tory camouflage.

The only sure thing about B.C. politics at the moment is that something is bound to happen soon. But what it will be no one has the temerity even to attempt a guess.

FARM PRODUCTION PROBLEMS BEFORE TOCINO MEETING

Toronto.—To place all the resources of Dominion and provincial agricultural experts at the disposal of the Canadian farmer is the object of the conference on agricultural services. This was the message Mr. Herbert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, as he opened the conference.

Speaking to officials representing every province in the Dominion, Mr. Weir declared the conference would begin a campaign to help the farmer discard enterprises in which he loses money. For example, the keeping of inferior dairy cattle. The most important thing before us, he said, is to work out some policy by which we can put across to the farmers the things which we know to be very much to their advantage.

Toronto, Aug. 29.—Agricultural officials from all parts of the Dominion met here today under the leadership of Hon. Robert Weir, the federal minister, to coordinate and reorganize the farm production of Canada.

The meeting brought together every provincial minister of agriculture, and all but two of the deputy ministers. The deans of all agricultural colleges were in attendance, as well as representatives of the federal department, the Canadian Pacific railway and the Canadian National railway.

Agricultural officials should also decide, said the minister, how best to co-ordinate and report the scientific findings of government research men for the benefit of the average farmer. For this reason he had called to the conference not only officials of the departments of agriculture in nine provinces, but also all the deans of agricultural colleges, representatives of the railways, and others interested in the farming industry. In a statement to the press, Mr. Weir declared the desirability of close cooperation between all agencies serving agriculture is beyond question. An increasing amount of cooperation has developed during the past few years, he said. The first purpose of this conference is to set up a national committee which will be charged with the task of coordinating the work of those co-operative agencies already in existence and of recommending the organization of new co-operative bodies where necessary. this will not achieve at a single stroke that complete coordination of governmental services desired, it will provide the machinery for immediate coordination on many projects.

The conference will also consider he continued, the advantages to be derived by the Canadian farmer from trade agreements concluded at the Imperial conference with the United Kingdom and other units of the Empire. Such information should be given the farmer at the earliest possible moment so that he could take full advantage of it.

At this time, said Mr. Weir, I do not intend to say anything in connection with the conference or the discussions that took place at the conference, that will gradually come out through the various discussions in the meeting.

Different Methods of Raising Campaign Funds

Leaders of the Democratic Party in the United States are making a general appeal for funds for their presidential campaign. They are asking men and women throughout the country who favor their policies to send in their contributions, large or small, according to their ability. It is the first time that either of the major political parties in the United States has made such an appeal, the usual practice being to collect from business interests and from men of means. Governor Roosevelt is making his appeal for funds, makes something reference to the Republicans as securing their campaign funds from those who will expect to be well compensated by Government favors.
The Democratic leaders may or may not be making a virtue of necessity at a time when it is not easy for them to raise sufficient money in the usual way. Will they depend entirely on the results of their appeal and not fall back at all on the old method of securing funds? But in any case, this appeal for general financial support from the rank and file and the criticism of the old practice in financing election campaigns may bring the whole question promi-nently to public attention with its recent results in the future.

In Canada there was much discussion last year of the way in which campaign funds are raised by both the old parties, as a result of the Beauharnois scandal.
It is an old practice of which little had been said in public and to which the public had been generally indifferent. In the past, generous campaign contributions were obtained from manufacturers, railroad promoters, contractors for public works or supplies, and other various kinds. Some money was obtained from disinterested people but most of it was secured from those who gave with a lively hope of reward and doubtful recompense with a definite understanding with influential party men. The customs inquiry a few years ago showed that large contributions were made by the distillers and brewers to both political parties.
This disclosure followed by that in connection with Beauharnois, has caused a good deal of serious reflection in Canada on the financing of election campaigns.

The continuance of the practice, by hard headed business men, of making substantial contributions to party funds has been only due to the knowledge that this was an effective means of obtaining valuable favors and advantages from the Government in the way of tax breaks or other legislation, contracts, appointments or otherwise. And that simply means a frustration in greater or less degree, of the democratic government of the country, which is supposed to be in the interest of the whole people.

It is impossible that the public, fully realizing the situation, will tolerate it indefinitely. Perhaps the public will recognize that they are responsible for the conditions that prevail, because of the large indifference to public affairs, to party organization and to the need of the parties for large sums for legitimate campaign expenses.
Most people work up a good deal of enthusiasm for one or other of the political parties before an election is over. If everyone were to contribute a dollar or a few dollars to the party of his choice, there would be no need of depending on an improper method of securing campaign funds.

Something might be said for a parliamentary appropriation for aiding the parties in meeting election expenses. This might be justified by the fact that it is necessary, not only to arrange for holding the election, but also to ensure that the people shall all be reasonably well informed on public issues. A Government appropriation could be supplemented by contributions from the rank and file. The making of the latter might have the definite advantage of increasing the interest of the donor in the organization.

His party—a necessary and legiti-mate work which should not be left to a comparatively few men and women in each party.

The old method of raising party funds should be dropped. It is a disreputable practice reflecting on credit on the intelligence or political ideals of the public that tolerates it. Other and better methods can be adopted as soon as there is the will to do so.—Winning Free-Press.

came to rob that house?
Prisoner—I can't sir. It's a trade secret.

He—Don't go. You are leaving me entirely without reason.
She—I always leave things as I find them.

shop was driving an assistant to distraction. For nearly an hour she dabbled over the hundred and one fabrics presented for her approval.

"On the whole," she said finally
"I think I want mullin."
"Yes," replied the assistant
"you certainly do, madam."

BEER is GOOD for YOU
THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT WAS MADE BY SIR THOMAS HORDER, PHYSICIAN TO THE PRINCE OF WALES AT A PUBLIC GATHERING HELD IN LONDON, APRIL 1931:

"THE willing and happy worker will get more work done and do it better than the unwilling and discontented worker. It is in this direction that alcoholic beverages like beer make their great contribution to economic efficiency."

"APPETITE is a function of the brain as much or even more than of the stomach, and its importance in the Physiology of digestion and nutrition is very great.
It is stimulated by a moderate use of such a beverage as beer, and at the same time zest is given to life which results in larger and richer activities."

THE BEER BREWED IN ALBERTA CONTAINS EVERY ELE-MENT AND QUALITY THAT SIR THOMAS HORDER WOULD EX-PECT TO FIND IN THE WHOLE SOME BEVERAGES OF MALT AND HOPS BE SO STRONGLY ADVOCATED.
